the details...

who STILL WE RISE™ is a one-night, online sharing-and-support session, created exclusively for divorced, divorcing and/or separated women who are also actively working as specialists within the field of sex addiction and/or betrayal trauma. Vetted female professionals only (coaches, clinicians, clergy and community leaders) for this FREE, low-key, open-house style gathering. Strict mutual confidentiality required. No clients allowed.

what For this particular session, our agenda will be simple: We'll come together to create a space that is healing, safe and courageous. We'll exchange personal stories without judgment or criticism, and we'll rally behind one another in coming to terms with the loss of our beloved partners and relationships. I (Gaelyn) will open the group session by sharing my own story, then open the floor to each of you to do the same. We'll invite you to ask and answer questions like:

How has my separation and/or divorce impacted my work as a helping professional? How has my work as a helping professional impacted my experience as a divorced, divorcing or separated woman? What are my deepest hurts, hopes, dreams, fears and needs moving forward? What is missing from my current support system—and how might our community help to fill that gap?

where This sharing-and-support session will meet ONLINE via Zoom; onscreen participation is required.

why While divorce isn't easy on ANYONE, it takes a unique toll on those of us who survive it while toggling between our personal and professional roles. Healers by day and mourners by night, we tend to our own wounds "after hours," often without the same degree of support we actively provide for our clients. In some cases, our work becomes a saving grace, a comfort zone wherein we feel healthy, hopeful and successful. At other times, work can become increasingly painful or exhausting, as the task of maintaining objectivity becomes more important (and more challenging) than ever before. Some of us feel embarrassed or ashamed about our change in relationship status, and we worry about its impact upon our professional reputation, identity and income potential. Some of us share our stories with colleagues and contacts, but more often, we keep the stress and distress of the whole situation to ourselves.

Well ladies, that isolation stops here. ♥
